PIONEER WASHER.
E. G. BOLTER,
AGENT FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

THIS CELEBRATED WASHING MACHINE IS now for the first time introduced to the Oregon public. It is unrivaled for its simplicity, durability and the rapidity and ease of its action. Washing the dirtiest clothes perfectly clean in from five to ten minutes, with but slight labor, and lasting, with proper care, for ten years. The wear and tear of clothing in washing by this machine is vastly less than by any other known process of washing. It does its work by a reverse motion in forcing the water through the clothes.

It having a tight cover, the steam thus assists materially in cleansing the clothes, and also avoids the inhaling of steam from hot suds.

This Machine captured the Special Premium at the California State Fair, and all that have used it pronounce it an invaluable adjunct to old housekeepers and families and washing men and washing women.

It has been extensively introduced throughout the State of California, and receives the universal commendation of all who have used it.

THE COUNTY RIGHTS, now unsold, will be sold at a bargain if applied for soon

For Reference, enquire at the Mansion House, and of John Wilson,

STEAMER
U. S. GRANT,
Will make Two Trips per Week to the
CITY OF ASTORIA:
Carrying Passengers at $10, the Round Trip, (Meals Included.)

The Boat leaves Portland Wednesdays and Saturdays at 7½ A. M. Returning leaves Astoria Thursdays and Mondays at 6 o'clock A. M

Every person purchasing a Passenger Ticket will be presented with one of 900 Prize Tickets, to be drawn on the 1ST DAY OF AUGUST, 1867, for the following Prizes:

Steamer U S GRANT, to be divided into 4 shares;
ONE BLOCK OF LOTS IN EAST PORTLAND, divided into 8 shares, or one lot to the share, viz Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8, Block 17, opposite the "New Columbian" Hotel, and at the terminus of the proposed Suspension Bridge;
ONE GOLD WATCH, worth $100;
100 CORDS DRY FIR WOOD, in 8 shares, to be placed on the Brooklyn Wharf.

The Steamer is 54 tons burthen, 35 horse-power engine, propeller wheel, draft of water 5 feet. She is being thoroughly refitted and refurnished as a Passenger Boat. The Boat will be delivered in perfect order, free from all incumbrance, and Warranty Deeds made for the real estate, to the persons drawing the same. Tickets can be had of C. P. FERRY, in Portland, where the money will be left on deposit till the prizes are drawn and delivered.

Any person having a claim against me, and wishing a ticket, can get an order for one by calling on me on board the boat. The person drawing the gold watch can have $100 in gold coin, if preferred.

C. P. FERRY, Broker, R. J. LADD, ex-Sheriff, AL ZEIBER, H. B. MARSH, and C. S. RILEY, Merchant, of Portland, are the Committee and Judges to direct the Drawing of Prizes. The Prizes will be drawn before the 1st of August, if all the tickets are taken before that time.

The above liberal offer is made to the traveling public to enable the subscriber to pay his debts, and not with any reference to speculation, as all the property is valued at much less than its cost, (the Steamer alone having cost $11,000), and the price for carrying passengers to Astoria being much less than the usual fare.

Portland May 21, 1867. d2m J. W. KERN.

Notice.

OWING TO THE STEAMER U. S. GRANT having lost several regular trips, she will continue to run for a few weeks, to give all ticket holders an opportunity to travel. The tickets stand good for a passage as long as the boat continues to run. A few more tickets yet to be disposed of.

A Soldier on Reconstruction.

The recent letter of General Pope to General Grant on the subject of reconstruction, of which mention has been made so frequently in the telegraphic dispatches and by the Eastern journals, is published in full. It is a complete vindication of the policy Congress has adopted The report of a tried and patriotic officer on matters which for months have been under his personal observation, may safely be put in the balance against any amount of loose declamation and general invective on the same subject from those who know nothing of the actual state of affairs in the South and whose zeal in denouncing the reconstruction acts proceeds entirely from a sympathy with defeated rebels. The occasion of General Pope's letter was the opposition of prominent rebels to his efforts to enforce the laws. B. H. Hill, of Georgia, late a Senator in the rebel Congress, is mentioned as a representative of this large class of men. "Only a few weeks ago," says Gen. Pope, "this person was pardoned by the President, and in common with almost every pardoned rebel, this is the use he makes of the clemency of the Government." Any satisfactory reconstruction of the Southern States while such men retain influence, is pronounced hopeless. So pernicious is their counsel that Gen. Pope, who has had opportunity for observing the drift of things in the South expresses a doubt whether "reconstruction on any reasonable terms is possible so long as these unrepentant and reactionary political leaders are suffered to remain in the country."

Andrew Johnson formerly had a theory very much like this, and which every loyal man in the nation endorsed. That was before he had swung round the opposite side of the circle. He once professed to stand precisely where Gen. Pope and every other man of unflinching loyalty now stands in relation to this question. In regard to the restoration of the States, he once inquired who should restore and re-establish, and answered his own question in these words:

> Shall the man who gave his influence and his means to destroy the Government? Is he to participate in the great work of re-organization? Shall he who brought this misery upon the States be permitted to control its destinies? If this be so, then all this precious blood of our soldiers and officers so freely poured out will have been wantonly spilled. All the glorious victories won by our noble armies will go for naught, and all the battle fields which have been sown with dead heroes during the rebellion, will have been made memorable in vain. Therefore I say that the traitor should take a back seat in the work of reconstruction.

This is what all our patriotic officers, as well as the people who sustained them during the struggle believed then, and now believe. Sheridan and Pope and Sickles and Howard, and their gallant associates in arms, including the General-in-Chief, still think that this is a very good doctrine.

Concerning the disfranchising clause of the reconstruction act, which is denounced so bitterly, Gen. Pope holds these remarks:

> Congress has done wisely in disfranchising the leading rebels and at least making it impossible for them to vote or hold office. It would have been still better to enforce their permanent absence from the country. The personal influence they might bring to bear if they were candidates themselves is thus greatly weakened and they are forced to discuss issues and not appeal to personal feeling in their own favor. So far from being willing to see the disfranchised classes relieved from political disabilities, I consider these disfranchising clauses of the Acts to be among their wisest and best considered provisions. If they do no other good than to relieve the people from the incubus of the old political leaders, they have accomplished incalculable service. While it was unavoidable that some good men would be disfranchised by provisions of law against classes of persons, the remedy is easy. To undertake the converse of this—that is, to give general amnesty and except individuals by name—would certainly result in leaving large numbers enfranchised who ought not to be. Such improper persons might decide the coming elections before their unfitness could be ascertained, and even then it would be more than difficult to remedy the evil. I consider the method set forth in the Reconstruction Acts by far the wiser course of the two, and I can hardly understand how any man familiar with the facts can think otherwise.

It is not those who are familiar with the facts, who have most to say against this policy, but those who know nothing about the condition of affairs in the rebel States. That class who deem it unconstitutional and utterly intolerable that any penalties should follow rebellion (except in cases like that of John Brown) are the persons who most spitefully oppose the wise and just measures of Congress, and who most bitterly condemn what our faithful soldiers and loyal people approve.

The result of a system of reconstruction which would leave the old political oligarchy of the South still in power, is thus portrayed:

> These men oppose any reconstruction whatever, except such as would leave them in precisely the same political condition as if there had been no rebellion and no war. Even such a reconstruction as this they would only accept as a necessity of the situation, with the purpose to renew in Congress, and perpetuate among themselves as nearly as possible, the same conditions which existed before the war. With these reactionists dominant in the South, freedom of speech and of the press will not even exist in name. The Union men, and even those who were secessionists but have advocated reconstruction under the late acts of Congress, would find no peace and no protection in these States. The last condition of the freedmen would be worse than the first.

The truth of this statement, put in so strong a light, must be apparent. The former conduct of these men is still fresh in the recollection of every one, and why should we suppose that they who for years have shown themselves grossly intolerant toward their opponents; who suppressed free speech and hung or expelled all whom they suspected of holding opinions opposite to their own; who, when they could no longer rule in the Government rebelled and for years carried on a murderous war with demoniacal ferocity,—why should we suppose that these men have suddenly changed their natures and become fit to be custodians of the power they once so grossly abused especially as they tell us both by their words and actions that they are unrepentant still?

In this admirable letter the necessity is forcibly stated of settling the questions at issue on a secure and permanent basis. We quote:

> The problem is to perpetuate reconstruction in the spirit and on the principles which can alone assure free government. Should we effect reconstruction even after silencing the open opposition of the old political leaders, we stand committed to admit the old reconstructed States into the Union. Once admitted into the Union, the power of Congress is reduced practically to the general power which that body has over all States in the Union. The moment admission into the Union is accomplished the military power is suspended, and with it all restrictions are removed. At once these old political leaders and the old political and personal influences will resume their activity, and we may find too late that such reconstruction as we have made is not only not what was needed and expected, but what will simply result in a reproduction of the same condition of affairs which made reconstruction measures necessary at all. Freedom of speech and of the press, education, equality before the law and in political rights and privileges are the essentials of any satisfactory reconstruction in the South. Without securing these we have secured nothing. How can we know that reconstruction will accomplish these results unless we know in advance the strength and the power of those who oppose it? Reaction is certain unless the reconstruction party can win the battle by decisive majorities, over all the elements which oppose it, left to develop themselves and apply their full force to the contest. If the reactionists thus left free can defeat such reconstruction as this, we then know what to do—what, in fact we must do—if we desire to perpetuate free institutions. It is best to know all these things before readmission into the Union is granted. It will be too late to learn them afterward. Now is the time and this is the opportunity to complete this work so that it will stand. Every dictate of wisdom and patriotism demands this work at our hands

These are words of wisdom. To do the work thoroughly is the object of those who have resisted the Johnson method of hasty reconstruction To quote the words of that functionary before he proved himself recreant to the trust that was given him "While society is in this disordered state we should fix the foundations of the Government in principles that will endure for all time."

Address by Senator Williams.

Some time ago it was announced that Senator Williams, before his return to Washington City, would address the people of Portland, giving his views at length upon the principal questions of a political nature now before the public, detailing the history of the reconstruction measures and defending the action of Congress in this very important matter. We are gratified to learn that in fulfillment of this announcement, the Senator will speak at Ore Fino Hall on the evening of Monday, the 23d inst., at 7 o'clock. The people of Portland have not had an opportunity to hear Mr. Williams for three years, and we doubt not that they will gladly embrace this opportunity. An able address may be expected, which should be heard by every citizen of Portland.

TENNESSEE.—The vote of Tennessee for Governor foots up as follows: East Tennessee, Brownlow, 24,055; Etheridge, 2,703; Middle Tennessee, Brownlow, 27,714, Etheridge, 8,389; West Tennessee, Brownlow, 13,693, Etheridge, 6,812. Total for Brownlow, 66,361; for Etheridge, 17,994. Majority for Brownlow, 48,367.

It has been a year or more since a term of Court was held at Lewiston. This neglect has been a source of much inconvenience. But the local paper rejoices that Chief Justice McBride has announced that he will hold a term of Court there, beginning on the 18th inst. The long neglect is charged to Judge Kelly.

The Chinese engaged in mining on the bars of Snake river opposite Lewiston, says the Journal, are doing well—for Chinamen. At one point they are making from $1 25 to $1 50 per day to the man, and at another they are making from $1 50 to $2 per day.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—The associated veterans of the Mexican war, held their second annual meeting on Saturday evening and chose the following officers: President, Maj. Gen. Henry W. Halleck, for California, Hon T. W. Fredon, S. O Rogers, for Utah, Gen P. Edward Connor, for Oregon, J. H. Farley.

The anniversary of Mexican independence is being celebrated to-day. A salute of 21 guns was fired this morning, which will be repeated at sunset. A National salute was fired at Alcatraz at 12 M., and the National flag hoisted on all the forts and vessels of war in the harbor. There will be a display of fire-works and a meeting, this evening, at Dashaway Hall.

Catharine O'Donnell drowned herself in a shallow pool of water, Saturday night. Cause, temporary insanity.

The ceremonies of circumcision was performed yesterday, upon the infant son's (triplets,) of Mr. Henry Dannziger. The Synagogue Ayatl Shalome, was filled with people, among whom were the various Jewish Religious and Benevolent Associations. The infants were named respectively, Abraham Lincoln Danziger, Isaac Andrew Johnson Danziger and Jacob John Conness Danziger. Gen Maxwell held Abraham in his arms; Mr. Wasserman (for Mr Haight), held Isaac Andrew Johnson, and Hon. John Conness supported Jacob John Conness in his arms. Three solid gold medals were presented by Progress Lodge No. 15, F. & A. M. Their value is at least $150. After the ceremony was concluded, the invited guests repaired to the house of the Synagogue and partook of a sumptuous repast, at which Rabbi Henry presided. Appropriate speeches were made by Rev. Dr. Henry, Gen. McDowell, Senator Conness, Rev. Dr. Cohen and Jacob Benjamin. Three successive goblets were then presented to the children by Lewis Rodlich.

ESCAPE OF A PRISONER.—The Lewiston Journal of the 12th inst., has the following:

> A man named Albert Igo, confined in our jail for the last nine months, effected his escape on Sunday night, the 8th inst., between 10 and 11 o'clock. Igo was committed on the charge of murdering Billy Page, (an individual who was known to be implicated in the horrible Magruder murder, but who afterwards turned State's evidence), and is about five feet eight inches high, light complexion, light hair and eyebrows, two upper front teeth slightly projecting, and is about 27 years old.
> The instrument by which he succeeded in making his egress was a large auger. The wall to the south of the room in which the prisoner slept is composed of two thicknesses of heavy pine plank, with sheet iron running between them, making a wall probably six inches through. In boring he struck a joint of this sheet iron, and as the auger progressed, the iron was torn at each end and pressed upward and downward, and then the outer plank was bored through. This enabled him to get out of his cell into a dark passage-way, which was still shut in by the wall of the main building. This passage led around to a window in front of the building, through which he passed, and no clue has yet been found to his whereabouts. A reward of $500 is out for his arrest and delivery at Lewiston.

MINING EXCITEMENT.—Says the Walla Walla Statesman:

> So great is the excitement about the newly discovered mines on the Kootenai, that all the hands employed on the steamer Mary Moody have deserted their posts and gone to the diggings. Mr. H. A Hogue, the agent, informs us that owing to this scarcity of hands, he has been compelled to lay the boat up. The accounts from the mines continue favorable, and the conviction gains ground that the whole district of country between Pon d'Oreille Lake and the Big Bend of the Kootenai is gold-bearing It is now too late to do little more than prospect and secure claims, but with another season we may expect these mines to give employment to thousands of miners.

SOLDIERS ARRESTED.—The Walla Walla Statesman of the 13th says:

> Under Sheriff Schultz, of Wasco county, Oregon, arrived here on Tuesday last with warrants for the arrest of two soldiers who are in some way connected with the murder of Marshal Keeler at the Dalles. Their commander at once gave them up, and the Sheriff left with his prisoners by Thursday morning's stage The man who shot Keeler is named McIntyre, and hails from the Five Points, New York, where he was schooled in crime.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO SEPTEMBER 11.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON, Sept 12.—Orders were issued to-day from the Executive Department, distributing the Amnesty Proclamation to all officials.

The report that Gen Robert E Lee passed through Washington on day of inauguration, on his way North is without foundation. He left Virginia Springs on Friday, for Lexington

A report from Captain James G Armstrong, commanding at Pensacola Navy Yard has been received On account of the prevalence of fever, partial suspension of work has been made necessary Captain Armstrong thinks this will add to the mailing of the people, but it would be a loss to the Government to carry on the work, because the heads of departments, clerks, etc., are all sick or dead. The Mayor had appealed to the neighboring cities for physicians, nurses and money All had been responded to nobly The fever was still raging forcibly.

The War Department has issued circulars to recruiting officers, requesting them to make weekly reports of the amount of public funds in their possession and where it is deposited

NEW YORK, Sept 12.—The Post's Washington letter gives the conversation of one of Grant's staff officers with him concerning the candidacy for Presidency. He said the would not be President if an opportunity offered He had made as much reputation as he ought to want The office of President would mar his domestic happiness, and would lose instead of gain him friends

The Express' Washington special says the President denied repeatedly that he contemplated a change in the head of the Treasury

The Post's special says: "I have authority for saying General Banks urged General Grant to retain the War Office, even if President Johnson attempted to remove him."

NEW YORK, Sept 13.—The Times' special publishes one or two dispatches which passed between Grant and Gen. Sickles not heretofore published Grant commends the wisdom of Sickles' conduct.

The Tribune's special says the President will keep quiet until after the fall elections. There will be no cabinet changes before

The Herald says the developments made in the internal revenue frauds in Brooklyn implicate certain members of the Washington cabinet

Further correspondence in relation to the Alabama claim is published. Seward contrasts the course pursued by England towards America during the rebellion with America's conduct during the Fenian invasion.

The Herald's Leavenworth dispatch says Hancock started for Washington to-day, on the order of General Sheridan He will be in Washington in a day or two

WASHINGTON, Sept 14.—The President has definitely decided to suggest to the several district commanders an extension of the time for the correction of the registry lists and the registration of those who are able to produce equal proof of their qualifications, to the first of October, and to fix the first Monday of November for the election in order to secure uniformity. No orders will be issued, as commanders have discretionary powers, but the suggestion will be given in an official form

The recent proclamation enjoining a strict observance of constitutional requirements was to-day issued from the War Department for the information of all concerned

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—The Tribune's special says Sickles is called to Washington to confer with Grant.

The President considers the clause of the reconstruction act prescribing the first of October as the last day for registration, as unconstitutional. He will raise this issue with Congress by ordering registration reopened and extended

Chase has returned.

Revised regulations concerning the removal, weighing and marking of cotton will be issued next week Transportation bonds will be abolished Bills of lading will be substituted. The use of metallic tags for marking bales will be revised, or other modifications of the present regulations will be made

Border State Union Convention

BALTIMORE, Sept. 12.—The Border States Union Convention assembled in this city to-day Tennessee, Maryland, Delaware, Missouri and Kentucky were represented. The attendance from each of these States was large Radical speeches are being made by prominent members, recommending that there be no distinction of color in the exercise of the elective franchise. Letters have also been received from leading politicians, urging the establishment of equal rights to every citizen throughout the Union. There is considerable enthusiasm among the members of the convention, and it is thought that the result will be most favorable to the Union cause in all of the Border States. The policy of Johnson is the subject of severe criticism and no faith is entertained in his loyalty.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 12.—The Border State Republican Convention assembled in Front street theater to-day Delegates were present from Delaware, Tennessee, Missouri, Kentucky, District of Columbia and Maryland. No distinction was made on account of race or color. A temporary organization was effected by the selection of Louis Thompson, of Delaware, chairman. A committee on resolutions was appointed, this consisting of J. J. Crosswell of Maryland, R. L. Butler of Tennessee, T. A. Vanhorn of Missouri, J. J Seewart of Maryland, H. M. Jenkins of Delaware, R. Stocet Matthews of Maryland, David Doshow of West Virginia, W. H. G. Brown of Maryland and Anthony Higgins of Delaware.

The following permanent officers were elected: President, Horace Maynard. Vice Presidents, R. P. Vanhorn of Missouri, Col. J. H. Clendenning of Missouri, R. R. Butler of Tennessee, Rev. Dan'l Watkins of Tennessee, A. Cresswell of Maryland, Geo. A. Cool of Maryland, Harmon Rubinson of Delaware, Robt R. Cummins of Delaware, Enos Segar of Delaware, David Goshorn of West Virginia, Gallagher of West Virginia, R. T. Johnson of District Columbia, and C. Clark of District Columbia. Speeches were made by Maynard, Cresswell and others. Letters were read from White and distinguished colored politicians; among them one from Senator Sumner, in which, after warning an antipathy to be present, he says: "Congress will leave undone what it ought to do if it fails to provide promptly for the establishment of equal rights, whether political or civil. Everywhere throughout the Union this is a solemn duty which cannot be shirked or postponed. The idea is intolerable, that under any pretension of State rights a loyal State can be permitted to set up a political oligarchy within its borders and then call itself a Republican government. I believe with all my soul that such a government must be rejected as inconsistent with the requirements of the Declaration of Independence"

A resolution was adopted: that it is the duty of Congress to protect the equal political rights of all loyal American citizens, without regard to color, and to guarantee a Republican form of Government to all the States, urging Congress to bravely aid and thoroughly adopt whatever measures are required for the establishment of peace and prosperity throughout the land, and suggest the propriety of submitting the States to adoption, a Constitutional Amendment providing that no State shall disfranchise any citizen because of race or color. The resolutions call for the reinstatement of Stanton; applaud the military services, prudence and firmness of Grant, and express the belief that the President should be impeached and removed. A mass meeting, subsequently held, indorsed the action of the Convention.

Maine Election.

AUGUSTA, Sept. 12.—Returns from 203 towns, cities and plantations, give Chamberlain 49,256; Pillsbury, 34,437. The same localities last year stood, Chamberlain, 54,628; Pillsbury, 31,329. There are 210 towns to hear from, which last year, gave Chamberlain 14,122, and Pillsbury 10,517. The Democrats have elected seven Senators to fifty-four Republicans. The House stands three-fourths Republican.

PORTLAND, (Me.), Sept. 13.—Chamberlain is elected by ten or twelve thousand majority. The Republican loss is 16,000 since last year.

Congressional Nominations.

WILKESBARRE, (Pa.), Sept. 12.—Ketchum has been nominated for Congress, to-day, by the Republicans, to fill the unexpired term of Charles Denniston, deceased.

Miscellaneous.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The result of the election in California had a depressing effect upon the Radicals here and is considered unfortunate for the national cause

SIOUX CITY, Sept. 12.—The Indian Commissioners have arrived here on their way to Fort Laramie and Fort Leavenworth, having held councils with all the tribes as far as Fort Sulley. The conference with several tribes were satisfactory and hope is entertained of suppressing hostilities. Yesterday, however, a train of wagons were fired into by some Indians near Fort Barker, but no one was hurt.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 12.—The yellow fever is still raging with considerable severity here.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 12.—Lieutenant Governor Stevens was to-day inaugurated Governor of Kentucky, vice John L. Helm, deceased. The ceremonies took place in the Senate chamber at Frankfort.

MONTREAL, Sept. 13.—McGee and friends will institute a scrutiny into the whole poll of Montreal, by which they expect to show that 500 fraudulent votes were cast

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 12.—The American psychological convention adjourned after a highly interesting session. It will reassemble two years hence in Philadelphia. The display of standard fruits consisted of 630 dishes of grapes, 600 apples, 745 pears, and 312 peaches The quality exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the society.

McCool, who challenged Joe. Coburn to fight him for a purse of $10,000, has sent on his deposit.

NEW YORK, Sept 14.—A committee of physicians, appointed to devise means for the relief of the yellow fever sufferers, has resolved to ask the co-operation of the Chamber of Commerce, in an address to the public. All medical associations are requested to consider the subject, and the charitable associations are asked to take prompt action thereon.

The Post says the large insurance and brokerage agency of Dobson & Co, of Boston, with branches in New York and Chicago, has suspended. Liabilities to the amount of $200,000 Many insurance companies, for whom they acted as agents, suffer.

Sickles made a lengthy response to a serenade last night, and declined to discuss personal or political issues, but said he obeyed every order received and tried to observe authority according to the intent and meaning of the law

A private dinner was given to Beauregard last night at the New York Hotel, by about one hundred friends The General in his speech said the talk about another rebellion was sheer nonsense and utterly impossible This generation of people should bend its energies again to build up the Union. He urges them to give the Government their united support in its attempt at reconstruction

The Savage and Roberts' Fenian attempt has failed Savage will issue an address next week General Meade, on his recent visit to the border, failed to discover a single Fenian.

MEMPHIS, Sept 12.—Some time since the office of the Eagle newspaper at Camden, Arkansas, was destroyed by soldiers, led on by Major Pierce Col Gilbert, commander of the Post, wrote to General Ord a letter in which he said "The censures of the press, directed against the servants of the people, may be endured, but General Ord and the military force detailed to enable him to perform his duties are not servants of the people of Arkansas, but rather their masters, and it is folly to be a great piece of impudence for the papers of the State to comment on military matters, under any circumstances whatever."

General Ord, in reply, says: "Your letter in which you attempt to justify the act of a party of soldiers insulted by an officer who forcibly entered a citizen's premises and destroyed his property, is received You will please explain why this act was not presented by the post commander, and if the requirements of the Thirty-second Article of War has been complied with Your assertion that the military forces are not servants of the people of Arkansas, but their masters, is unjust to both the people and the military, and unfounded in law The laws are for the benefit of the people The assumption that a party of soldiers could storm forcibly the dwelling property, and commit a gross violation of the public peace, would not be tolerated under a Napoleon"

NEW YORK, Sept 14.—The statement that it has been been decided that General Pitz John Porter is to have a new trial is premature. The President favors it, but awaits Grant's commendation Porter had an interview with Grant yesterday

BY ATLANTIC CABLE.

ATHENS, Sept. 11.—France and England have sent a joint note to Greece, urging the Government to refrain from further hostilities while the Sultan maintains neutrality with Crete

GREECE, Sept. 12.—The radical Congress is still in session in the city A severe attack was made by certain violent speakers against the United States, causing an exciting debate and much ill feeling. A number withdrew consequence.

MADRID, Sept 10.—All the United States vessels from the West Indies are strictly quarantined at the ports of Balearic Islands. The insurgents are still successful and much alarm pervades Government circles.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Public suspense is great, relative to the reply of the Sublime Porte to the Russian ultimatum It is feared that too much reliance will be placed upon the friendship of England and France, and that the Turks will refuse to comply with the demands of Russia. In this event a war will be inevitable between the Turks and Russians, which it is apprehended will lead to serious complications with other European powers.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Returns of the Bank of England show that the amount of bullion has increased 500,000 since the 5th

A dispatch from Athens, states that Great Britain and France have sent a joint note to Greece, urging the Government at Athens to refrain from hostilities with the Sublime Porte, and maintain strict neutrality toward the Cretan question.

CANEA, Sept. 13.—The radical Congress, which met here on the 9th inst., is still in session. Its proceedings attract much attention. During its sitting this morning an attack was made upon the socialists of the United States, which gave rise to an excited discussion Ill feeling was created before the close of the session, and many members withdrew from the Congress.

MADRID, Sept 13.—The Governor of Menorca issued orders establishing a rigorous quarantine at Port Mahon, Balearic Islands, for all vessels arriving from ports of the United States or West Indies.

BADEN, Sept. 13—evening.—The negotiations between Kasson, acting for the United States, and the Prussian Government relative to the postal treaty are concluded. Arrangements have been made for reduction of the recent treaty with England, and interchangably signed It is not known when they take effect Postage is reduced fully one-third when mails are dispatched between America and any German port direct, and a reduction of one-half when mails are carried via Great Britain.

The Moscow Gazette, in a leading editorial, pays a high compliment to the United States for its course on the Cretan question, as exemplified by the recent resolutions of Congress, and regards the example of America as the beginning of a more healthy condition of affairs in Europe.

VIENNA, Sept. 14.—Count Charles Von Frankenstein, acting Minister at Copenhagen, has been appointed Austrian Minister to Washington, vice Heydenbrock relieved.

SUPREME COURT PROCEEDINGS.—In the Supreme Court on Friday and Saturday, the following proceedings were had upon appeals from this district:

Miles, Well & Co., respondents, vs H H Snow and D M Jones, appellants. Motion to dismiss appeal sustained, and case continued until next term.

J H Mitchell and J N Dolph, respondents, vs Stephen Coffin, appellant. Motion to strike out report of referee overruled.

Robert Henderson, respondent, vs A T Hawthorne et al, appellants. Decree of the Court below affirmed.

Lewis Ernst, appellant vs Wm Parish and N Bancroft, respondents; judgment affirmed.

Benjamin Bequette, respondent, vs The People's Transportation Co., appellant. Judgment affirmed.

State of Oregon, respondent, vs S B. Vance, appellant. Continued until the last of the term.

State of Oregon, respondent, vs Burville Brown, appellant. Case argued and submitted.

J N Dolph, respondent, vs John L Nickam and wife, appellants. Case argued and submitted.

Bralley vs Wiley et al. Judgment affirmed.

A B Richards'n, respondent, vs L G Fuller et al, appellants. Case argued and submitted.

Charles Maguire et al, respondents, vs Samuel L Stott, appellant. Argument to be closed on Monday.

VANCOUVER ITEMS.—Yesterday afternoon, the ceremonies of laying the corner stone of Mr. Louis Sohn's large brick store were celebrated with considerable circumstance at Vancouver. The corner stone was laid by the Young America Engine Co., and the ceremony consisted a considerable interest among the citizens, who attended in large numbers. In the stone were sealed copies of the Weekly and Daily OREGONIAN, the Weekly Herald, the Register, Bischtel's photograph of the Young America Engine Co., various coins, and masonic and other mementos. The building is to be a large one the first brick on that part of the town site adjoining the Military Reserve. Vancouver now has a corner stone and several other appurtenances of a great city, and we can see no reason why it should not hereafter "go marching on." At the meeting of the City Council, Monday evening, a petition signed by nearly a hundred tax payers, was received, asking that an appropriation be made for the construction of several cisterns, back from the river, that the fire apparatus may be thereby more effective. It will probably be acted upon favorably. At the same meeting, the Council passed an ordinance abating the nuisance of horses, cattle and swine running at large.

U. S. MAIL WANTED.—We are appealed to for a kind word in favor of mail service between Corvallis and Yaquina Bay. A correspondent says:

"The new military road from Corvallis to Yaquina Bay having been fully completed, quite a large number of settlers have taken homes along the road from Blodgett's valley over the divide and down the Yaquina river and its tributaries and on and around the bay. It is some eighteen months since that slice from the Siletz reservation was thrown open, and they now claim a population of from 600 to 800, including all from Blodgett's valley, over to and around the bay, and the citizens on the Siletz and Alsea reservation, all of whom receive mail matter via Corvallis by the favor of F M. Stanton's stage line, only as an accommodation. They have signed huge petitions for a U. S. mail route, which ought to be favorably considered. A country undeveloped and new, claiming such a population, a prospect for coal, two fisheries of Cod and Salmon, acres of planted oyster beds and a soil adapted to the esculents, would most gratefully accept from the hands of our venerable Uncle Samuel the gift aforesaid."

UMATILLA BUSINESS REPORT.—We clip the following from the financial and commercial report of the Umatilla Press of the 13th: "Business during the week has been quite active, and promises to continue so for the next few weeks. Large consignments of freight have been received and forwarded. We notice on the wharf two quartz mills, destined, we are informed, to South Boise and Jaggle creek. We are glad to see such coming, as they are evidence of the future permanency and richness of those camps. Capital is all that is required to develop our resources, and quartz mills, we believe, are the most important agencies through which the precious metals will be extracted from the matter earth. The rates of freight during this week have been quite firm, at previous quotations, with an upward tendency. As we go to press, however, the rates rule easier and it is believed that the regular freighters will be sufficient to carry all freights, without interference from the outside. A number of teams, we learn, are on the road to the forwarding point on the Columbia river, have come down from Walla Walla and Walla Walla, and will henceforth make this their headquarters."

LOST BAGGAGE FOUND.—During the latter part of last May, Mr. Q. A. Brooks, special Postoffice Agent, was on his way overland from the States to Salt Lake, his personal baggage being one stage behind. When about two hundred miles east of Salt Lake, this stage was attacked by Indians, and two persons were killed and another wounded. The Indians were finally driven off; but all the baggage and mail matter was rifled out of the stage and abandoned, and it was supposed at the time that the Indians got it all. On last Monday, however, Mr. Brooks received a letter stating that his baggage had turned up at Salt Lake City all right, and now awaits his orders. There is a little mystery about the matter which, if explained, might also account for some of the irregularities in the mail carriage on the plains.

THE COUNTERFEITING CASE.—At the late term of the Circuit Court for this county, Dorville Brown was convicted by a jury of the crime of uttering counterfeit coin. His counsel filed a motion for arrest of judgment arguing that the State courts could not exercise jurisdiction, that the crime, if committed, was a crime against the laws of the United States and could only be tried in the United States courts. Judge Shattuck decided, in effect, in accordance with this argument, granting the motion. From this, an appeal was taken by the State to the Supreme Court. A telegram from Salem yesterday states that the Supreme Court has overruled Judge Shattuck's decision. This will send the case back to Judge Shattuck for judgment on the verdict of guilty.

FLOUR.—There has been a slight flutter in certain flour circles for a couple of days in consequence of favorable telegrams from San Francisco. Knowing very well that the demand in San Francisco might be very strong merely for a day or two (to complete a cargo for a vessel, for instance), and then drop to the old figure, dealers here were a little cautious about offering an advance. The news of a continued firmness and a still further advance in the San Francisco market, received yesterday, will have the effect to advance most brands in this city. Indeed, we heard it stated yesterday that one, at least, of the leading brands had been put up fifty cents.

THE GOVERNOR OF IDAHO.—Gov. Ballard, of Idaho, returned on Monday evening from a visit to his old home in Linn county, and remained in this city over yesterday. Accompanied by his family, he leaves this morning for Boise City, where he has purchased a residence and proposes to go to "housekeeping." He favored us with a visit last evening, during which he spoke hopefully of all the material interests of the mining region; but granted us that the Willamette valley is the garden spot of the Pacific slope.

MINING NEWS.—Messrs. Lent & Hirst, stock operators of San Francisco, have sent a twenty stamp quartz mill, cast at one of the San Francisco foundries, to the Pioneer ledge, Granite Creek, Idaho, and it is now being erected. Several capitalists of this city and other points in Oregon, own considerable interests in the Pioneer ledge, but Messrs. Lent & Hirst are understood to own a majority of the shares. The ledge is known to be very rich. The mill was sent to its destination by way of the Beachy route.

TO BE LAUNCHED.—The new steamer now on the stocks at Rainier and designed for the Cowlitz river trade, will be launched next Saturday afternoon. She is represented as a beautiful little craft. The machinery of the dismantled steamer Cowlitz is to be put into her. It is probable that we shall soon see her at our wharves, as it is the intention of the owners to bring her up here before she finally settles down to regular business.

COLORED SCHOOL AT SALEM.—The colored people of Salem have supported a school for their children during the last six months, expending therefor, $127 50, obtained by private subscription. The children are said to have made very commendable progress, and strong hopes are now entertained that, in consequence of their enlightenment, they will not be disposed to insist upon their "civil rights" to marry into Democratic families.

TARGET EXCURSION.—The Fenian Guards will to-morrow morning go to Oswego, upon their second annual target excursion and pic-nic. The steamer John H Couch has been chartered for the occasion, and will start from the foot of Morrison street at 9 A M., and again at 11 A. M. Tickets for gentleman and lady, $1. In addition to the target shooting, there will be dancing and other amusements during the day.

TESTIMONIAL TO MISS. O'CONNOR.—The lecture by Professor Allsop, last evening, was attended by a very fair audience. Of the lecture, we are unable to speak, as we were not present. Though the precise amount of funds realized by the sale of tickets could not be ascertained last night, it is thought by the managers, that it will reach very near $300. Many persons purchased tickets who did not attend the lecture.

A FINE BUNCH OF PLUMS.—Mr. Charles A Burchardt, yesterday, showed us the handsomest cluster of plums we have seen this year. They were of the Egg variety, numbering twenty-three, all of large size on a twig of not more than ten inches in length, and the bunch weighed four pounds. They were grown in the garden of Mr. Burchardt in the Northern part of this city.

U. S. CIRCUIT COURT.—There were no proceedings in the U S. Circuit Court yesterday, beyond an announcement by Judge Deady that he would this morning render his decision in the case of Florida vs Heirs of D H. Lownsdale, on the motion to remand the case to the State courts.

HENLEY'S ROYAL BALSAM.—Persons affected with coughs, colds and kindred ills, and who believe in balsams, should read the advertisement of L Gross, Druggist, and see what he says of the virtues of Dr Henley's Royal Balsam.

RISING.—Persons from Oregon City, yesterday, informed us that the Willamette above the falls has risen several inches since the late rains. It is probable that no further difficulty to navigation will be experienced.

JUDGMENT BY CONFESSION.—A judgment was entered in the docket of the Circuit Court for this county, on Monday, in favor of W W Page and against D H Hannah, for the sum of $1,203 25 coin.

WILLAMETTE FREIGHTS.—The steamer Senator, yesterday, brought down from Oregon City, 320 qr sks flour, 20 bags feed, 55 bxs fruit, 6 bales woolen goods, and 3 bags wheat.

MESSAGE.—There is a message at the telegraph office for Jas. D. Coleman.

PASSENGERS.—The Cascade brought down yesterday a large number of passengers mostly returning miners from Eastern Oregon and Idaho.

TREASURE RECEIPT.—Wells Fargo & Co., received yesterday by the Cascades boat, $23,020 in treasure from the Upper Columbia.

RUMOR.—The town is full of rumor that Barnard Bros. are selling Fine Clothing awful cheap. They will receive another large stock by steamer Oregon due to-day.

STATE ITEMS.

The steamer building at Umatilla for the Lewiston trade, will be ready to run in about two weeks.

The work on the Oregon Central Military Road has reached the summit of the Cascade mountains.

School land has been sold thus far by the Board of Managers, as follows: Yamhill county, $7,000; Washington, $600; Multnomah, $5,500; Lane, $9,600; Benton, $4,600; Linn, $700; Polk, $4,000.

The following is related by the Columbia Press: Jimmy Dublin is an original character, no doubt of it. Jimmy was chief commoner on Monday night, and in the exercise of his functions as such, came near making it 'mighty hot' for our friend Dixy. The anvil had been charged well with powder, when "Dixy" came along, a little "under the weather," and sat down upon it. Dublin, being very mischievous in his firing would wait for nothing, and touching the red-hot iron to the powder, "off she went," not only the anvil, but "Dixy." The anvil jumped but a foot or so, but "Dixy" continued on as though nothing, or rather something, had happened, and came down in the sand about ten yards from where he started up. A little of Steve's soothing syrup, however, made things all right.

One of the prospecting party which left here, says the Umatilla paper, some weeks ago, returned on Thursday, having been attacked with mountain fever. He reports favorably of several places where they prospected, and also brought in a large piece of coal obtained from the ledges found by them when a few days out from this place. The vein is situated about fifty miles from here, and can be easily reached with wagons. There are two distinct veins visible, one over the other running into the mountain, and from what Hinds remember the party made they believe the whole mountain to be coal. They made several fires with the croppings obtained from the surface, found it to give an exceedingly strong heat, and after burning out, leaving nothing but a few white ashes. There is some talk of sending out a wagon to bring in a load of it to test, as a great many imagine it to be a good article for blacksmith's use. Should this be the case the vein would soon be opened, as no coal that can be used for this purpose has, as yet, been found on the Pacific Coast. The remainder of the party are now prospecting on Trail river.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU

Is a certain cure for diseases of the BLADDER, KIDNEYS, GRAVEL, DROPSY, ORGANIC WEAKNESS, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, GENERAL DEBILITY, and all diseases of the URINARY ORGANS, whether existing in MALE OR FEMALE, from whatever cause originating and no matter of HOW LONG STANDING.

Diseases of these organs require the use of a diuretic. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or Insanity may ensue. Our flesh and blood are supported from these sources, and the HEALTH AND HAPPINESS, and that of Posterity, depends upon prompt use of a reliable remedy.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

Established upwards of 18 years, prepared by H. T. HELMBOLD, Druggist, 594 Broadway, New York, and 104 South 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

au2ld1m3p

INVIGORATE THE SYSTEM.—Vigorous digestion and pure bile produce nutritious blood; and nutritious blood a healthy frame. Does the victim of a dyspeptic stomach and a disordered liver desire to know how the digestion may be improved, the bile and other fluids of the body purified?

DR. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS

will accomplish this desirable revolution in the system, regulating the secretions and excretions, give tone to the animal juices which dissolve the food, strengthen every relaxed nerve, muscle and fibre, and bring the whole machinery of vitality into vigorous and healthful play.—Sold by Druggists and dealers everywhere.

HODGE, CALEF & CO., Agents, Portland, Oregon.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU and IMPROVED ROSE WASH cures secret and delicate disorders in all their stages, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience and no exposure. It is pleasant in taste and odor, immediate in its action and free from all injurious properties.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU gives health and vigor to the frame and bloom to the pallid cheek. Debility is accompanied by many alarming symptoms, and if no treatment is submitted to, consumption, insanity or epileptic fits ensue.

CHAPTER I

"So we have failed, altogether failed, Monsieur d'Illrassy"

"Ma foi! yes, miserably. We could not tell he would sleep in the palace We were all ready, he also was ready, as Monsieur the Duc de Beaufort knows by this time"

'You are as ready as before to distinguish yourself, I suppose, and earn those golden honors that France would bestow upon the man who had the misfortune to be present at the death of M le Cardinal"

"I am very humble, but I think that the office of 'rat catcher to Her Majesty would suit me"

"Or that of 'rat-killer,' the rat's name began with an M"

"Truly, I should kill the rat if I caught it, rats that are not killed when you catch them are apt to bite very seriously when they get loose."

"There are many ways of killing rats, I have heard, M de Brassy"

"Yes, M. de Campion, in the country they hunt them with little dogs and shoot them for sport, also they employ ferrets to kill them in their burrows"

"And in towns, M. de Brassy—how do they kill rats in towns?"

"Well, Monsieur, you see that town rats are very greedy, and court rats are positively gluttons."

"Well, about town rats?'

"Why, they generally die from eating something that disagrees with them"

"And you think, M. de Brassy, that a certain gluttonous court cat that stores up golden corn might possibly eat something that disagreed with him?"

"Truly he might, at all events, if it were set before him in such a manner as not to excite suspicion."

"But how, if your court rat was very suspicious—a very old, cautious rat?"

"Then it would be more difficult, but not even then impossible."

"Look you, M. de Brassy, you are from Picardy, and new to Paris, I will tell you something of this court rat"

"That is, his eminence M le Cardinal Mazarin"

"Right—his eminence Do you know, M de Brassy, that from the time of the late king's death to the present, scarcely a day has passed but a certain lady of whom you know, has planned and plotted——"

"As Madame la Duchesse de Chevreuse only can plot, I suppose."

"M de Brassy, as I said, you are from Picardy In Paris it is thought dangerous to mention the names of those we talk about. As I was saying, not a day but has had its plot and its failure The fidelity of his servants have been tested again and again; he has sat at table with the most deadly poison in his favorite dishes, and has escaped by refusing them. He changes his cooks often, the last died suddenly."

"So I heard."

"I tell you why. We—our party, that is—had bribed the man, he found it out, but showed no suspicion, and sat down to his dinner, and——what took place. I had it from one of——people His eminence sent for the——ing have you been in my service?" said he——

"Let me think to-morrow, your eminence'

"Ah good, my friend. Are you perfectly satisfied with your place? You have no desire to change?"

"None, whatever, your eminence'

"Ah, I am glad that it is so I like to have men of genius in my service and attached to me and you, Monsieur——'

"Coques, your eminence.'

"You, Monsieur Coques, are a man of genius. I honor genius I will to-day show my appreciation of your services by giving you an invitation to dine with me. Sit down, Monsieur Coques, sit down."

"The man tried to decline, excused himself on the score of dress, his humble origin; the honor was too much for him. It was useless, he was obliged to sit down.

"You will, I am sure, excuse me, Monsieur Coques,' said his eminence; 'but I have made a vow to taste nothing but some eggs and some water for twenty four hours, and my time does not expire until this evening at midnight; therefore, you will honor me by taking to yourself that dish of lamb, which looks tempting enough to force me from my vow if I were not a cardinal. Also you will excuse me, I'm sure, Monsieur Coques, if I call one of my guards.'

"He called one of his guards, and said to him, 'Monsieur de Dazan, you see that chair opposite that dish. If, in half an hour, the dish is not empty, fire at whatever is in the chair. Also, if, during the half hour, the chair should appear likely to become vacant, it will perhaps be as well to prevent its becoming so by firing. Do you understand, Monsieur?'

"The guard was one of those machines of soldiers that his eminence delights in, so you see M Coques was obliged to accept the invitation, and he dined with his eminence. His own cooking was too rich for him"

"Yes, I heard it He died that night. But at the palace, or elsewhere at some of his friends' houses?"

"My dear M. de Brassy, his eminence seldom visits; he eats only at the dishes of which his host eats, and invariably retires from the table in less than half an hour, after the manner of the ancients, with the difference that they retire to prolong the pleasures of appetite, his eminence to prolong life itself."

"But at the palace?"

"Well, you see, there are those at the palace who might by chance pick up the bait meant for the rat alone, and though France would be grateful to the man by whom she was freed from M. le Cardinal, it is not so clear that she would pardon a mistake that left her queenless or kingless; and the old rat is very cautious, and eats only from the dish of the mistress who sleeks his gray fur, and at whose chamber door he scratches at midnight."

"Then there is nothing for me to do, M. Campion?"

"Yes, this. The court goes to Ruel to-morrow. His eminence has invited to the palace of the Duchesse d'Aiguillon a certain La Signora Leonora, who is to sing to her majesty. Now, this Signora Leonora is or was, and will be again, a most particular friend of M. le Cardinal, who, though he is a churchman, and has permanently taken the place of Buckingham, is not yet so old as to be insensible to the charms of a sweet voice when heard in solitude and whispers."

"I see, he will meet the signora."

"Yes, but do not mistake, he never goes out except in disguise, and then some guards are following, disguised as peasants or bourgeois or what not, even as women sometimes."

"Then this piece of steel will not prove of much service to me, I had hoped to carve a fortune with it."

"A good weapon, I have no doubt, M. de Brassy, but force is useless now. This is your plan Follow his eminence wherever he goes; take this package of white powder, and whenever or wherever he eats or drinks, endeavor to scatter it in the food or mix it in the fluid; for the rest, chance must guide you; and the moment you are certain the powder has been swallowed, stay for nothing, but hasten to me and claim your own reward, for within two hours Mazarin will be dead Are you agreed?"

"M. de Campion, I am, but I require one thing—a safeguard. On the death of the cardinal, the Duc de Beaufort will then be minister of France; let me then have his signature to this promise and this safeguard for myself."

"It would be very inconvenient if such a paper were found on you by the cardinal's people before he died. I would myself sooner trust to the gratitude of our party to remember their promise."

"Well, M. Campion, I will trust you, who are not a prince yet."

"Do, you will find that in serving the Duchesse de Chevreuse you have not served the most ungrateful of mistresses."

M. de Brassy had left the room in which this conversation had taken place but a few seconds, when he was recalled by M. de Campion

"By the-by, M. de Brassy, excuse me for recalling you, but I want to ask you a question How wide do the mouths of the people of Picardy open?"

"Monsieur!"

"Don't be offended, but I ought to tell you that in Paris we do not open our mouths very wide. A person I knew was so incautious as to open his mouth the other day in a public place, wide enough for the name of Madame la Duchesse de Chevreuse to escape through his teeth"

"Yes, and then"

"Oh, nothing—only—as his body was found in the Seine next day with a dagger wound through the heart from the back, it was supposed he had fallen over one of the bridges."

"And the wound in the back?"

"Ah, that we could not account for, but it was suggested that if his mouth had not been so large, or if his teeth had been longer, he would not have fallen over the bridge perhaps"

"Precisely, M. de Campion, I see—but I shall not fall over the bridge, for my teeth are very long indeed, and, as you see, my mouth is very small."

"Just so, Monsieur, you have in that a great advantage over the gentleman who fell over the bridge. You will of course be at Ruel to-morrow?"

CHAPTER II

"So the court comes to-day, mother I wish we lived a little nearer to the town"

'Nonsense child are you not satisfied with the good word of all the lads about? Do they not call you the Flower of Ruel?

"They do now, mother but they will not to-morrow when they have seen the Queen and the ladies"

"Bah! the queen is old, and has only ugly women in her train, for one the court gallants should make comparisons There will not be in all the court a handsomer lass than yourself Ah me! if your father would but attend to the farm instead of sitting and drinking his own wines and cognac all day, I should indeed be happy, and instead of giving you away to that good for nothing Quitaut of the Gardes Colonelle, I might have had the master son for my son in law"

"I am very glad indeed, mother, that you will give me to Jules instead of that little Mazarinist, the master's son"

"Hush, ma fleur! it is not safe to talk like that, poor folk should know nothing of the court or its parties You must be like your father's house, free to serve all But get yourself dressed, for there is a traveler coming down the hill—a soldier, too"

The soldier came in, and was waited on by the host in person After a few questions as to how things were going on in Paris, the soldier asked, 'Is your house full?"

"Full, Monsieur! we have no one here, all the rooms are to let."

"No, not all, Jacques," said the wife, "the best room is engaged by the foreign lady"

"Foreign lady! what is her name?"

"La Signora Leonora," said Rose, I remembered it because I thought I had heard it before."

"I dare say you have, my pretty one," said the soldier, "it is the name of the new Italian nightingale that is to sing in the woods of Ruel to please the queen."

"Well, she has engaged the room over this to be kept for her to meet a gentleman in—her uncle, she said"

"Ah! I should like to see her uncle, for I think he's an old friend of mine"

"But you are from Picardy, Monsieur, if I know anything of France"

"True, mine host, I am from Picardy but why should I not know La Signora's uncle?'

"You are right, sir, but I understood that he came from Italy with her, and was strange to France."

"It may not be the same, still I think, good host, I should like to see him when he comes without his seeing me"

"That is very easy any one from the branches of the tree yonder can see into this room quite well."

"I will try it When do you expect the lady?"

This afternoon. She is to meet her uncle here"

"Well, if you will get me some dinner in another room, and join me in a flask, I'll stay and see the Signora's uncle"

The worthy host of the Rose of Ruel provided the dinner, and joined the soldier of Picardy over his after dinner flask.

"I suppose now, M Jacques, that this is not a bad trade of yours—this keeping of inns and farming ought to make you a rich man. You have been married, of course?"

"'Marie, of course!' Not at all, good Monsieur. I am as poor as a church mouse"

"You do not say as a church rat."

"Monsieur le Capitaine," said the host, in a whisper, "men do not talk out loud in Ruel just now about rats at all, much less about church rats"

"No—and why not?"

"Because some rats have sharp ears and sharp teeth"

"You do not seem to like the rats?"

'No, indeed, the rats are the farmers' enemies in the country, but it is the town rat that has done me most mischief."

"I do not understand, M. Jacques, how you, a farmer, can be hurt by rats in town"

"I didn't say the town rats, I said the town rat"

"Bah! That is dangerous indeed, that is another thing, but I do not still understand how"

"You see, M. le Capitaine, I have property in the city, and the new edict of Tolse asks me to ruin myself to pay to the queen a tax of my property in Paris that has been mine and my father's these eighty years The good King Henry II little thought that his law would be forgotten for a hundred years, and then renewed at the instigation of a creature of Cardinal Mazarin's to ruin and beggar honest men like myself."

"Oh, I see then, his eminence is your rat, that eats your Paris corn, eh?"

"Truly so, and my barn at Paris holds more corn than all my barns here put together."

"And what do you do to the rats that eat the corn in the barns of Ruel?"

"We kill them and trap them and——"

"And you poison them," hissed the soldier into the ear of his host, seeing he hesitated.

"Yes, Monsieur le Capitaine, we poison them, that is to say, the country rats."

"And the town rats also?"

"If I had the chance."

"Good. Let us understand each other. What is your barn in Paris worth?"

"It brings me in five thousand francs a year."

"Well, if you will help me you shall have a pension for life of ten times that sum"

"Agree you shall direct, I will execute."

"About your wife?"

"She will know nothing."

"And the girl?"

"Nothing—she will do whatever she is told, she is only a large child, suspecting nothing I must go; there are travelers just arrived"

The new comer was a man past the prime of life, with keen, piercing eyes, a grey beard, and curled moustache, a soldier evidently by his dress Speaking with a slightly foreign accent, he asked

"You have a young lady here?"

"No, Monsieur, she came, and is gone on to the palace at Ruel. She said if her uncle came she was to be sent for, I will send on one of the lads for her."

"No, my servant will go; I will rest."

"Enter, M. le Capitaine," and the landlord, remembering his promise, showed his guest into the room overshadowed by the tree. The soldier and his servant entered.

"Well, Motteville, have you seen anything suspicious?"

"I have, your eminence"

"Silence, you fool! Speak louder, and say Capitaine"

"I have seen that gentleman we were to have met in Paris on the quai near the Palais Royal, that night in September"

"Oh, indeed—which of them?"

"The one from Picardy, my capitaine."

The soldier rose suddenly and opened the door of the room, and finding no one listening, said, in a low voice:

"You mean the brave De Brassy?"

"I do I thought I knew the horse in the stable, and I managed to see the Capitaine in the next room"

"The next room!" said the soldier, in alarm, "Are we guarded?"

"There are four, your eminence—two laborers drinking under the trees in front, the carpenter who is putting up the door of the shed opposite, and the supposed woman, who is gathering simples in the hedge?"

"And you forgot to add yourself"

"I did not forget, for I am going to fetch La Signora Leonora"

"True; tell her to make haste, for I like not the near neighborhood of this Picardy gentleman, now that, by accursed misfortune, I am without my mail"

The servant mounted and left, and the soldier was left alone.

The soldier in the next room had meanwhile climbed the low tree looking into the room

He came in by the back of the house, and, calling the host, said to him in a voice hoarse with emotion

"So this is the uncle of La Signora?'

"I suppose so, as he has sent by his servant to fetch her"

"Shall I tell you something else?"

"If you will Anything you like"

"That soldier uncle is the court rat"

"His eminence?"

"Yes, without a doubt"

"Do you know, I caught a rat in a trap the other day, and I stuck a skewer right through him Now, you wear something like a skewer"

"That may be, but yours was a very long skewer, and you stood outside the trap and put it in between the wires If you had to go into a trap to put a skewer into a rat as big as yourself, with another skewer and a coat of mail under his fur, I think you would not have killed the rat, mine host."

"Very true, M le Capitaine, I forgot these facts. But if two went into the trap, with two skewers?"

"Do you see those two men drinking some wine out there?"

"I do, and good wine it is too for such as they are"

"Such as they!' Those peasants are two of the best dagger men in France They have pistols under their belts, and can hit the ace at twenty paces Do you see the man at work at your neighbor's opposite? That is another His basket contains, besides a set of carpenters' tools, a carbine that will kill at one hundred paces certain That you see is four to two. Now look at that woman gathering simples. She seems a large woman"

"She does—almost a man"

"No wonder it is a man No less a one than the the lieutenant of the cardinal's gardes so you see though we should enter the room two to one, a single whistle would make us two to five and those are odds, I fear, M Jacques, you have not trained for lately"

"What is to be done?"

"This—send your daughter to ask him to have something, the day is warm, he may like her looks—that is our chance"

"I see! the powder——"

"Yes, the powder first—and failing that the steel"

The girl came in and asked his eminence what she could serve him with

"Some wine—some fruit—some wine, girl."

"Of what kind Monsieur!"

"Such as the peasants drink"

"It is not good enough There is the better kind that we drink in the house on the feast days"

"Bring that, then"

She brought the wine and placed the jug on the table, then left the room and fetched some fruit Taking the cup in his hand he poured out the wine and tasted it At the instant of tasting it he noticed that the mottled shadow from the leaves of the trees that fell on the floor became in part solidified If the form had any shape it was that of a man He was evidently watched, he waited till the girl came in, unconscious that she was watched by both father and mother But the quick ear of the Cardinal told him the door had not shut, and he at once sent the girl to shut it, and with the jug in his hand and once more tasting it, detected the presence of a fine powder, traces of which were apparent, on close inspection, on the rim of the wine jug

'And this is the wine you drink on festival days?" said the soldier, when the girl returned with some fruit

"Yes, M. le Capitaine; the other, that our people drink, we call our vintage de Mazarin"

"Why so?"

"Oh, because since the revival of the law for taxing the houses in Paris, we have had to put so much more water in it to make more profit"

"Then you do not love the Cardinal here!'

"Not at all, my father did not like him before, and now——"

"Yes, now!"

"He hates him"

"Why?"

"I do not know much—but chiefly because of the the tax,"

"Is he at home?"

"Yes, Monsieur, that was he you saw, and he has been drinking this same wine in the next room with a soldier like yourself, from Picardy"

"And you Do you like this Mazarin?'

"I do not know, I have heard he is the good Queen's husband, and does not treat her well, and they do say he takes the money from the poor for himself That is mean, and I hate mean things, yet I have heard that he is very kind to his people; I know the servant of one of his gardes"

"You blush, my pretty one, is that your lover who is a servant?'

"He says he loves me," said the girl, "but my father and mother says he is not rich enough though I could be content with little for myself"

"But of Mazarin—they want to kill him in Paris, I have heard."

"So have we here But if he would go away to his own country, and leave us French to go alone, they would be content. As it is, even my father said the other day, when he caught a rat in the trap and killed it, that he wished it was the Cardinal"

"That was rash of him to say and you to repeat."

"Oh, as for that, it was a joke, and we never mind what we say to soldiers, for they all hate him too much themselves"

"Well, mademoiselle, what and if I tell you something more about this man, the cardinal?"

"I will hear."

"Let me tell you, then, that I know him—I know that he is only man who can save France—that he is the only man that can save the queen or king from the rapacity and greed of the great nobles; that in all the court he is the only one who has head enough to carry on the plans that Richelieu began, and that must be carried on if France is to remain a great nation; that his death now would be the ruin of king, queen and nation. This I know, that though a foreigner, he is more French than the French themselves, though a churchman, more a true soldier than the soldiers, though a subject, he is more to the queen than all her subjects, and, let me tell you, girl, that this Mazarin, whom your father would kill like a rat, is in this house—is here—is now talking to you"

"Good God! is it possible, Monsieur le Capitaine, that you are——"

"I am Cardinal Mazarin, the queen's husband, the destined saviour of France"

"Great heaven, I have spoken to you as if you were only a soldier"

"Look, girl, do you see that shadow of a man in the tree?—don't move—that is a brave hired to assassinate me! Do you see this wine? It is poisoned!"

"No, no! I drew it myself from the cask."

"And never left?"

"Yes, for one minute, for a cloth."

"And in that one minute your father or the Capitaine, who is now in the troo, put in this white powder you may see hanging round the top—that is deadly poison."

"Do you not believe that I am guilty, Monseigneur?"

"Not for a moment; but poison it is. You have heard of Joan of Arc?"

"Oh, yes, often and often. She was once like me, the maid of the inn"

"Yes; you must be like her in something else" "I should like to be quite like her."

"She died for France, and so must you. Your father and this brave must believe that I have drunk this poisoned wine; if it goes away as it came in, they will know that their plan has failed, and will kill me at the risk of their own lives. If I, a feeble old man, drink it, I shall be dead in less than an hour; therefore, you must drink it, it will take longer to kill you than me; in that time I shall have sent for the queen's own physician, who may save you You see you must drink it"

"But I am so young to die so horribly! I have not confessed——"

"Very well, I will die and with me will die king, queen and France!" and the cardinal lifted the cup to his lips

"No, Monseigneur, give me absolution, and I will die for you Give me the cup"

He gave her the cup and pronounced the absolution over her

"Is there anything which I can do for you?"

"Yes, pardon my wretched father, and take care of my Jules"

"Your father shall be sent abroad, and I will attach Jules to my own person. Are you ready?"

She nodded.

"Let us drink, then, to France"

"For France, then!" said the girl, and she drank the cup

"Now, go. Take these things away, tell them I have drunk the wine, and in less than two hours I will send the physician. Meantime, eat half a dozen raw eggs and drink all the milk you can find in the house. Go, and God be with you?"

The girl left the room, and in less than ten minutes he heard the clatter of the horse's hoofs in full gallop toward Paris

There was an anxious look on the faces of all the court at Ruel that evening when, hour after hour passed, and the minister had not made his appearance Presently it began to be rumored about that the cardinal was ill—then that he was dead; then, in a short time, how he died poisoned, and where—near Ruel Mi Voiture, the poet, made some funny verses, of which the poisoning of rats was the principal theme

At last the whisper reached the ear of her majesty herself, and inquiries were made for some persons who could furnish the details No one knew anything but that it was rumored at Paris that the cardinal was dead, and it was certain that the party of the Duchesse de Chevreuse was in the highest possible state of triumph At ten eleven, as the continued absence of the cardinal gave some ground for the rumor her majesty impatiently inquired for further information There was, for an instant, a dead silence as the door opened to admit M. le Cardinal, who, advancing, said "I hear your majesty has made inquiries for me"

"The absence of your eminence has been attributed to your death by poison here in Ruel"

"Yes, I heard so; your majesty, in the antechamber, but it is not quite true It is not I that am poisoned, it is only a young woman that is an attendant at a cabaret at which I stopped to day The mistake is natural with those who wish it were me"

And then he told his mistress the story as he thought fit

"But why make the poor child drink the cup? She was at least innocent by her willingness to it," said the questioner

"Very true," replied his emithence; "but you see that had I sent out the same quantity of wine that came in they would have known I had taken none and the plot had failed, and desperate men do desperate deeds The wine, then had to be got rid of, it was unfortunate for her, but I thought I consulted the interests of her majesty and of France by not taking it myself, though I am aware some here hold different opinions"

"Did you send the physician?"

"I did not"

"And, for the love of heaven, why not?"

"Because—because," said the cardinal "it is possible that a man may be so situated that his gratitude to a young woman may be inconvenient to him"

Tradition says that there was in the churchyard of Ruel a tomb of white marble of Italian design, on which on a certain day in every year, a fresh wreath of immortelles was laid only ceasing to be placed there in 1661, which was the date of the cardinal's death

The tomb bore this inscription

Tumor Removed!

PORTLAND, August 10th, 1867

I HAVE USED RENNICK'S SITKA LINIMENT for pain and swelling of the gums and cheek I had a large tumor forming on the gum which arose from killing the nerve in my tooth and caused me a dreadful pain which prevented me from sleep for several nights I applied the Liniment, and to my surprise, it removed the lump and eased the pain so that it is now as well as the other cheek My cheek was fearfully swollen. This was done in the presence of two witnesses.

I MITCHELL

I was present and know the above to be true, and am willing to swear to it L QUIVEY.

PORTLAND, August 13th, 1867.

For five years I have suffered with a pain or weakness in my back, which at times was dreadful I often thought I could not bear such torment But I got a bottle of RENNICK'S SITKA LINIMENT, and with one rub it perfectly cured me I can recommend it to any lady suffering from pains in any way, for I am convinced it will at once remove them MORE COHN,

Rheumatism Cured!

State of Oregon, County of Multnomah—ss

I JEREMIAH BROCK, BEING DULY SWORN, SAY that I am fifty three years of age that I reside in Yamhill County, State of Oregon I came to Portland on business on horseback, from my home this morning When I left home I could scarcely walk or stand on my feet, from Rheumatism, which has afflicted me for the last eight years I was standing in Wilson's stable, on First street, in this city, when I heard Mr Rennick's offer to bet that he would take out the Rheumatism in any case in twenty minutes Rennicks offered to bet $100 that he could do it. I went to Mr Rennick's house and he applied the Liniment to my leg, and in twenty minutes my leg felt sound and limber, and as well as ever JEREMIAH BROCK
